

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS AROUND THE WORLD: SELECTED ONLINE RESOURCES

- ACE Project: The Electoral Knowledge Network

<http://aceproject.org/>

The ACE Project is an excellent resource for information about comparative elections worldwide.

The following pages at ACE Project are of particular interest:

- Comparative Data: A systematic collection of how countries manage their elections, which offers information about electoral systems, electoral management, legislative framework, voter registration, and other related subjects.

http://aceproject.org/epic-en/index_html/view?set_language=en

- How is the Head of State Selected? Charts that describe different types of heads of state, with links to further information about each country within a given category of head of state.

http://aceproject.org/epic-en/es/Epic_view/ES01

- CIA World Factbook: Field Listing, Executive Branch

<https://www.cia.gov/library/publications/the-world-factbook/fields/2077.html>

The CIA World Factbook executive branch page contains up-to-date information regarding recent elections or appointments of heads of states for over 200 countries.

- CQ Voting and Elections (via Axinn Library databases)

http://www.hofstra.edu/Libraries/Axinn/axinn_db.cfm?type=alpha&desc=no#C

For information about American presidential elections, in particular, CQ Voting and Elections integrates data, analyses, explanations, and historical material.

Presidential Elections includes explanations of the presidential electoral process, analyses and data for historical and modern presidential elections, modern voting behavior, key events and issues, and presidential biographies.

See also the article within this database by J.L. Moore entitled “International and U.S. Elections Compared” (2003).